Through painting, textiles, film, and sculpture, the thirteen artists in residence explore ideas of identity, memory, psychology, and site-specificity. From dense handwoven tapestries, to shellacked orange peels, the works in this exhibition invite viewers to examine their own interior lives, and the ways our exterior reality is shaped by what is repressed, and what is revealed.

About the artists:

Jake Couri received his MFA in Fine Arts with honors from California College of the Arts in San Francisco, CA (2018). His work has been shown at Milan Machinima Festival in Milan, IT (2023), Green Kill in Kingston, NY (2023), Public Records in Brooklyn, New York (2020), and Superposition Gallery in Los Angeles, CA (2019). He completed an artist residency at Anderson Ranch in Snowmass Village, Colorado (2019). He currently lives and works in New York City.
